

CARMELINA M. GORDON, MD

I became a doctor because

"I was attracted to the medical field because I wanted a chance to help others. It is satisfying to know that I can offer advice and treatment to others to help alleviate their suffering. I chose ophthalmology as I think the gift of sight is one of the most precious gifts that we have. By being able to improve or preserve one's vision, I feel that I am able to enhance the lives of others and those around them."

Certification: American Board of Ophthalmology

Fellowship: Vitreoretinal, Kresge Eye Institute, Wayne State University, Detroit Michigan; Vitreoretinal Research, William Beaumont Hospital, Royal Oak, Michigan

Residencies: Medical College of Virginia, Richmond, Virginia; St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Pontiac, Michigan; University of the Philippines, Manilla, Philippines

MD: University of the Philippines, Manila, Philippines

BS: Biology, University of the Philippines, Manila, Philippines, Magna Cum Laude

Member: American Academy of Ophthalmology, Association for Research in Vision and Ophthalmology

My vision is making a difference to those around me

"The subspecialty of retina is unique in the sense that patients with retina problems are in danger of losing their precious gift of sight if left untreated. By possessing the ability to recognize and treat these patients, I feel that I am truly making a great contribution in their lives. I know it is important to you that you receive the best possible care to correct or restore your vision along with a doctor who understands your concerns and who always puts your needs first. That is the kind of care you can expect from me and from my staff. My goal is that at the end of my journey, I have made this world a little bit better through my contributions to my patients' lives and to the specialty of ophthalmology."
